Scent Hurdle Racing

After Best in Show/High in Trial on July 15, 2017 in the Obedience/Rally Obedience Rings

Explanation of Scent Hurdle Races

Scent Hurdle Racing is a relay race between two teams of four handlers, their dogs, and a box-loader. Each team races their dogs simultaneously over a series of four hurdles spaced ten feet apart and the two rows of hurdles spaced twelve feet away from each other. Each dog must retrieve a specific scented and numbered dumbbell from a square dumbbell box set twelve feet beyond the fourth hurdle on each course. As each dog retrieves his handler's dumbbell, he immediately returns over the four hurdles to his handler and the next dog is sent to repeat the same performance until the fourth dog on the team has completed his run. The first team to successfully complete the course will be declared the winner of that heat. The first team to win two out of three heats will be considered the winner of the race. Once one team has won two heats, the race is over.

Team colours are used in the handler outfits, dog jackets, and dumbbells. Each dog has a number on its jacket that corresponds to the number on its dumbbell. The heights of the jumps are set by the shoulder height of the smallest dog competing in each heat.

There are two types of entries – Regular and Blended. You will note that a regular team all dogs racing jackets, dumbbells, etc are the same colour. On a Blended team dogs from different teams make up a team. Therefore you will see dogs with different colour racing jackets and dumbbells running together.

There are five judges: Starting Judge; two start-line judges and two box judges. They watch for serious errors such as stepping over the start line, propelling dogs over the start line, failure of the dogs to bring back correct dumbbells, etc. in some cases a dog may run again after the other dogs on his team with his time added into the team time. Penalty seconds may be added to team times for other infractions. Judges confer after each heat to decide on the winner.

Audience participation makes this sport exciting. Shouting, yelling and clapping seems to make the dogs run faster, perform better, so let us hear from you! These races will count for points towards National Championships.

For more information about Scent Hurdle Racing please contact the Regional Representative, Avril Tatterson @ regionalrep@shaw.ca.
